Rev. Joseph Perry, who had been appointed to preach the annual sermon, was then introduced to the audience. Bro. Perry took for his text Psalms 92:12: "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree." The subject was discussed under the following heads:

1. The characteristics of the people described. "The righteous" are those who think right and live right; to begin right-living is to repent, believe and be baptized.

2. How the righteous prosper "like the palm tree," the most attractive of all trees—a fruitful tree: the Christian must grow in the likeness of Christ and bear fruit. What is true of individuals, is true of the church.

3. The church must be an evergreen. The church that is planted in Christ, and rooted and grounded in Him, ever drawing life from that inexhaustible fountain, never withers.

4. The aspirations of the church must be heavenward; the fault with many churches to-day is, that they have not high aspirations.

At the conclusion of the sermon, Rev. P. F. Maloy led in prayer.
